How do I open a QR code?

The easiest way to scan a QR code is with your smartphone's built-in camera app. Open the camera and point it steadily at the QR code for two to three seconds. When a pop-up with a link appears on your screen, tap it to open the website or content.

What is happening in Berlin on September 20?

On 20 September 2026, two elections will take place in Berlin. Voters will elect the House of Representatives (Abgeordnetenhaus) and the twelve District Assemblies (Bezirksverordnetenversammlungen - BVV).

These parliaments make decisions that affect the lives of everyone in Berlin. At the same time, not everyone has the same opportunities to influence which parties are elected and which decisions are made. Around 30% of Berlin's residents are not eligible to vote. For example, in the election to the Abgeordnetenhaus, this includes people without German citizenship. People experiencing homelessness also face barriers when it comes to voting. Without a permanent address, it can be difficult to access information about the election or to prove eligibility to vote.

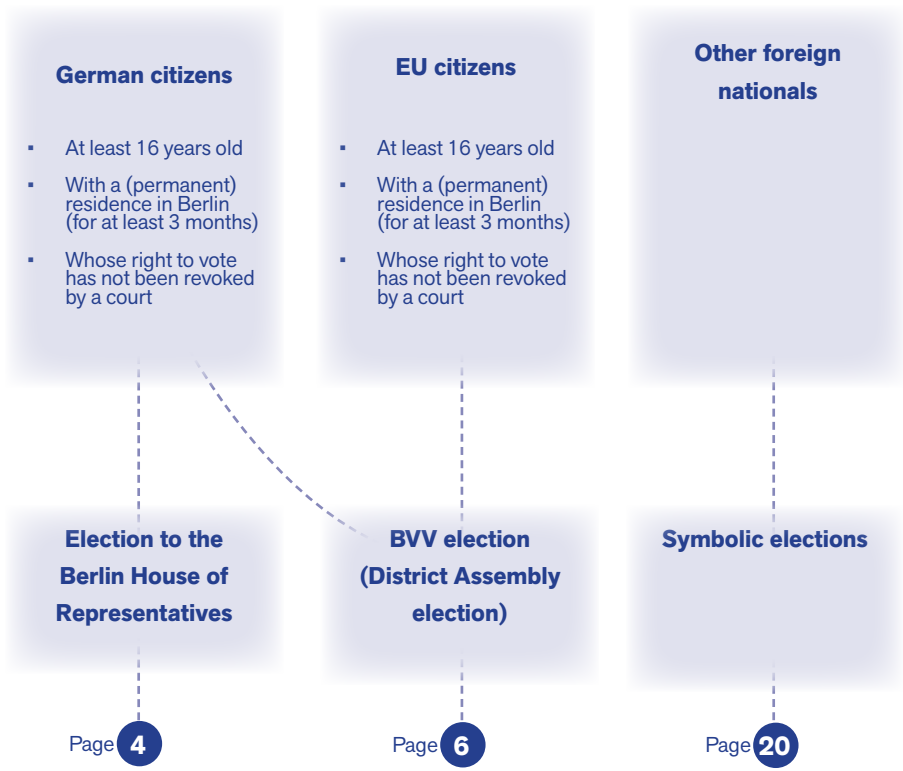

In the BVV elections, EU citizens who live in Berlin can also vote. This means that around 9% of EU citizens have voting rights at district level. The districts decide on many issues that directly affect people's everyday lives, such as the funding of support services, the use of public spaces, or services for people facing housing insecurity.

This booklet explains the requirements for casting your vote on September 20 and presents other ways to participate if you are unable to vote or can only vote with restrictions.

Who can vote in the elections to the Berlin House of Representatives and the District Assemblies (BVV)?

Election to the Berlin House of Representatives (Abgeordnetenhaus)

As the state parliament, the Abgeordnetenhaus makes decisions concerning Berlin as both a federal state and a city.

What are the responsibilities of the Abgeordnetenhaus?

- ⊗ Political decision-making and legislation at state level
- ⊗ Setting the budget: the state budget law determines for which purposes and to what extent public funds are used
- ⊗ Election of the Governing Mayor of Berlin
- ⊗ Oversight of the Senate and Senate administrations

How does the election to the Abgeordnetenhaus work?

- ⊗ The election uses a mixed

electoral system with first and second votes

- ⊗ The first vote is used to elect the direct candidate in each constituency. Candidates who receive the most first votes in their constituency enter the Abgeordnetenhaus through a direct mandate
- ⊗ The second vote is used to vote for a party list. The second vote determines the overall distribution of seats in the Abgeordnetenhaus and therefore the balance of political power
- ⊗ A 5% electoral threshold applies. This means that a party must receive at least 5% of the valid votes in the election to gain seats in the Abgeordnetenhaus

Who is eligible to vote?

- ⊗ German citizens
- ⊗ who are at least 16 years old
- ⊗ who have had their main residence in Berlin for at least three months without interruption (for people who are not registered at any address in the population register, their actual place of residence is considered their place of residence)
- ⊗ who are not excluded from voting rights under Section 2 of the Berlin Election Act (WahlG BE)

Important: On election day, voters must be able to present an official identity document (identity card or passport).

Who is standing for election?

Lead candidates of the parties running for the Berlin House of Representatives:

- ⊗ CDU: Stefan Evers
Treptow-Köpenick constituency
- ⊗ SPD: Steffen Krach
Steglitz-Zehlendorf constituency
- ⊗ Die Linke: Elif Eralp
Friedrichshain-Kreuzberg constituency
- ⊗ Bündnis 90/Die Grünen: Werner Graf und Bettina Jarasch
Elected via the state party list
- ⊗ AfD: Kristin Brinker
Steglitz-Zehlendorf constituency
- ⊗ FDP: Christoph Meyer
Charlottenburg-Wilmersdorf constituency
- ⊗ BSW: Alexander King
Tempelhof-Schöneberg constituency

Information about other parties running in the election can be found on the parties' websites. The website of the State Returning Officer lists all parties and state party lists that are running in the Abgeordnetenhaus election:

The District Assembly Elections (BVV)

The District Assembly (Bezirksverordnetenversammlung - BVV), together with the district administration (Bezirksamt), forms the self-government of each district. It sets the political priorities for the next five years, but it cannot change state or federal laws. The BVV election is therefore an important opportunity to influence politics in your own district.

What are the responsibilities of the District Assemblies?

- ⊗ Political decision-making and participation at district level
- ⊗ Setting the budget: administration and allocation of funds
- ⊗ Electing the district government: the district mayor (Bezirksbürgermeister*in) and district councillors (Bezirksstadträt*innen)

- ⊗ Oversight: monitoring the work of the district administration (Bezirksamt)

How do the District Assembly elections work?

- ⊗ All eligible voters have one vote
- ⊗ With this vote, a person can be elected from a party list in their district
- ⊗ The election uses a proportional representation system. This means that the number of votes a party receives determines how many seats it gets in the BVV
- ⊗ A 3% electoral threshold applies. This means that parties must receive at least 3% of the valid votes in a district to gain seats in the BVV

Who is eligible to vote?

- ⊗ German citizens and EU citizens
- ⊗ who are at least 16 years old
- ⊗ who have had their main residence in Berlin for at least three months without interruption (for people who are not registered at any address in the population register, their actual place of residence is considered their place of residence)
- ⊗ who are not excluded from voting rights under Section 2 of the Berlin Election Act (WahlG BE)

Important: On election day, voters must be able to present an official identity document (identity card or passport).

Who is standing for election?

- ⊗ Voters elect parties and the candidates they have nominated on their lists in Berlin's 12 districts
- ⊗ To find more information about candidates in your district, search on your smartphone using the terms: "BVV election", the name of your district, the party name, and "candidates".

Voting without a Permanent Residence

If you do not have your own accommodation and are not registered at any address in the population register, your actual place of stay is considered your place of residence.

The determining factor is the Berlin district where you stayed overnight on the night of 15 to 16 August 2026. The District Electoral Office responsible for that district can, upon application, enter you in the electoral register.

For example, if you spent the night of 15 to 16 August 2026 in Neukölln, the District Electoral Office of Neukölln is responsible for processing your application.

Registration in the electoral register is a prerequisite for being able to vote in the elections.

1 Register in the Electoral Register

In person at the responsible District Electoral Office

WHEN: 17-28 AUGUST 2026, 1 PM

You can submit your application directly at the District Electoral Office. The advantage is that you can receive assistance with completing the application.

Important: Bring an official photo ID.

Complete and send the application yourself

WHEN: 16-30 AUGUST 2026

Complete the application for registration in the electoral register.
Do you need help completing the application or with translation? If so, you can get support, for example, from the counselling centre of KLIK e. V. Send the completed application by post to the District Electoral Office responsible for you.
Important: Your application must be received by the District Electoral Office no later than 30 August.

B

2 Receive your polling notification

If you submit your application in person at the District Electoral Office, you will receive your polling notification immediately on site.

If you submit your application by post, your polling notification will be sent to the address provided on your application.

At the polling station on election day

WHEN: 20 SEPTEMBER 2026, 8 AM-6 PM

You will need:

- ☒ Your polling notification
- ☒ An official photo ID

The polling card contains information about your polling station, opening hours and accessibility.

DONE!

By postal vote

After receiving your polling notification at the District Electoral Office, you can vote immediately by postal vote on site.

You may also take the postal voting documents with you and vote by post at a later time.

See the information on postal voting on p. 11.

Accessible Voting

For blind and visually impaired people

If you are blind or visually impaired, you can use a voting template (ballot guide).

You can request a voting template from the General Association for the Blind and Visually Impaired Berlin (ABSV).

Phone: +49 30 89588-0

Website: www.absv.de

Assistance with voting

If you need help voting, you can bring a person you trust to assist you.

For example, this person can:

- ⊗ hold the pen
- ⊗ read the ballot paper to you
- ⊗ help you mark the ballot

You can also ask a member of the election staff at the polling station for assistance. If you vote by mail, you can also receive help from another person. In this case, the assisting person must sign the required declaration on the postal voting certificate.

Important: Even if you receive assistance, your vote must remain secret. No one is allowed to know how you voted.
